(Rep., Mass.), said that as the bill pro posed a code for the government of a dependency of the United States it might be well to consider whether we were able to deal intelligently with dependencies generally. He then launched a bitter attack pon that section of the bill which repealed all existing laws relating to the sale of quor in the district of Alaska and made only unlawful to sell liquor to Indians. This was a monstrous proposition, he declared. Virtually, it meant free rum in Alaska-the sale of liquor without license without regulation and without restriction of any kind. Such a proposition was with out paraflel. It meant a relapse into bar-
